El Condado Shopping Centre in Quito, Ecuador – for which Arrowstreet served as the design architect – is the recipient of the 2008 International Council of Shopping Centers (ICSC) Latin American Shopping Center Silver Award for Design and Development.

The award is given in recognition of retail properties for their overall design and creativity in the development of renovation, expansion, and new retail projects.

“The concept for El Condado Shopping Center grew from the desire of neighborhood leaders to create a focal point for a growing community,” said Kevin Nice, architect for the project at Arrowstreet. “With a combination of local and regional shopping, we designed a retail center that creates a tie between the transit hub and the surrounding neighborhood while providing a locus for future housing, offices, and additional retail.” Arrowstreet designed the modern structure to green building standards, taking advantage of the temperate climate and using local materials that complement the surrounding mountains.

Arrowstreet is a multidisciplinary design firm providing architecture, planning, interior design, and graphic design services. Based in Somerville, MA, the firm is a ten-time winner of ICSC awards in the United States and abroad.
