Bob Lowe, a Principal and Director of Graphic Design at Arrowstreet, was recently selected as a finalist in the SHIFTBoston Ideas Competition. The entry depicts a new “island” on the Charles River that would serve as an extension of downtown Boston.

The competition, intended to collect and inspire, called on local designers to submit their visions for the City of Boston, with the goal of attracting greater public interest in future possibilities for Boston’s urban environment. Competitors were encouraged to explore topics such as the future city, energy efficiency, and ecological urbanism.
